

Abstract of the Disclosure

A method and apparatus for determining the current location of a mobile device.

More particularly, Bluetooth® enabled mobile devices can be located precisely in an independent fashion, i.e., independent from any communications network associated with 5 the particular mobile device or independent from a GPS or other dedicated system used for location identification purposes.